

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Stumbled across an interesting character the other night.

He was a dyed-in-the-wool, or leather, cowboy.

Raised in a saddle, educated on the range and "plumb full" of interesting anecdotes.

For instance without seeming to intend such, he related a thrilling episode of a stampede.

He made it very vivid, the rolling hilly country, a dark night, a sudden downpour, a flash of lightning and the terrifying rumble of thunder.

Cattle, it seems, cannot stand Tipos of light.

With the first flash they started for the open country.

The riders, there were three or four, jumped to their work.

One fired three shots, a signal to the other cowboys sleeping nearby.

The point in a stampede, he said, is to get the cattle milling among themselves and not to permit them to break away.

If they start running, I guess they will probably continue for ever.

The flashes of lightning were continuous, he said, illuminating the whole scene.

And the thunder boomed like a cannonade.

The storyteller was maneuvering about endeavoring to stem the flow of the herd on his side.

He happened to be just in the line of march of the cattle when his horse stumbled.

An outcrop of rock or clay was the cause, he believed.

The horse went down from under him and he started rolling.

The wild stock were headed directly for him and he mentally said "goodbye" as he tried to get to his feet.

Whoa, the column's getting too long. This had better be continued tomorrow.

POLICE KNOW UNION DEPOT MURDER GANG

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 6—UP—The United States Department of Justice and the Kansas City police department announced today they knew definitely the identification of the gang which shot down four police officers and escaped conviction in the Union station massacre here June 17.

Simultaneously it was learned that an unidentified suspect had been arrested in the case. He was apprehended by Federal agents and deputy sheriffs and rushed to the Jackson county jail, where he was held incommunicado.

Charles Arthur (Pretty Boy) Floyd, notorious Oklahoma outlaw, and Harvey Dailey, escaped convict who formerly worked with Frank Nash, the convict who was slain at the Union station were ordered arrested in warrants issued today by Attorney General Cummings in Washington.

Warrants also were issued for Robert G. Brady, alias Bob Brady; Ed Davis, alias W. A. Davis; James Clark, alias Jim Clark, and Wilbur Underhill, alias Henry Underhill, all notorious criminals with national reputations.

Underhill and Bailey were the ringleaders in the gang which captured Warden Kirk Prather, two guards and more than a dozen civilians in the spectacular break from the Kansas penitentiary at Lansing on Memorial day.

Mrs. Marie Piqueredo of 142 Twelfth street is recuperating from a minor operation.

Japanese Start To Prepare for Death Festival

TOKIO, Friday, July 7—UP—Chili-dren of Japan today started colorful observance of the festival of the seventh eve of the seventh month, while their elders in every Buddhist family of the Empire began to clean the latrines (family altar) to prepare for Obon, the great Buddhist Festival of the Dead.

Tonight the stars of love will meet in the heavens and the children, reviving as a festival the religious ceremony that held through the ages, will celebrate the meeting of the Weaver Princes and their Herdboy husband.

Lends Hard Fight

The United States' group, however, led a dogged fight against quitting in failure. The result of the president's appeal was that no a delegate among the 16 countries represented on the steering committee arose to advocate adjournment.

Besides seeking the pock-marked Oriental, the police were exerting every means in the hunt.

At the same time they were proceeding on the theory that the adventurous, imaginative girl was wandering around San Francisco, afraid to go home lest she be arrested for the box of candy that disappeared with her.

Seen in Park

R. D. Cheatham, a neighbor, told the girl's father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Marcello Giorni, that two weeks ago he saw the girl and the Filipino in a whispered conversation in Golden Gate park.

The girl gave the man her address, according to Cheatham, and was sternly reproved by her chaperon.

At the same time they were proceeding on the theory that the adventurous, imaginative girl was wandering around San Francisco, afraid to go home lest she be arrested for the box of candy that disappeared with her.

Two Proposals

The conference is to proceed on two tracks:

1—All subcommittees are to meet as rapidly as possible and draw up a list of subjects on which the nations are ready definitely to proceed.

2—These are to be submitted to the steering committee which will decide what the future course of the parley shall be.

This compromise postponed discussion of monetary problems for the present.

The gesture saved the gold bloc, led by France, had sought for immediate adjournment earlier in the week, but in the face of the adamant Roosevelt attitude and British support of the American program, they fell in line on a compromise on stabilization matters, and voted to carry on.

Two Proposals

The festival was virtually forgotten in the late Meiji era, but during the past few years it has been revived, chiefly for children.

On bamboo trees in school playgrounds, in gardens of their residences, the children today humbly cut images of many sizes and colors, bearing short poems.

On miniature altars the children placed offerings of melons, sweet rice dumplings and other food which might please the stars of love.

New Warning on S.F. Bay Clams

Failure to heed permanent quarantine restrictions against clam digging in San Francisco bay, except along certain sections of the Marin county shore line, has resulted in a case of typhoid fever in Daniel Boyd of Richmond.

In his report to Dr. Giles S. Porter, director, State Department of Public Health, Dr. W. A. Powell, Contra Costa county health officer said that the illness of Boyd, a clam digger, was clearly due to his eating of raw bay clams.

Quarantine against the clams is and probably Saturday; moderated due to the numerous sewers that empty into San Francisco bay.

CULT LAWYER DODGES JAIL Lost S. F. Girl Found

WAS HIDING IN BASEMENT TO ESCAPE PUNISHMENT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—UP—Blonde curley Linda Giorni, eight year old daughter of a San Francisco importer, left herself out of a basement storeroom of her residence tonight and ended a three day search instigated by her parents who believed she had been kidnapped or lost.

Lived on Candy

The girl hid herself away early July 4 to enjoy a box of candy made by her step-mother to send to relatives.

Fearful of punishment she subsisted on candy for three days and nights rather than come out of her hideaway.

Disappearance of the Giorni girl was beginning to cause no end of excitement.

Into the case had come the sinister and mysterious figure of a pock-marked Filipino. The girl's parents actually believed she had been kidnapped.

The girl had been arraigned at Juana Haab, Greenland, on the southern tip of the peninsula, but hoped none of the authorities would have to use the gurney.

RUTH'S BAT STILL GOOD FOR HOMERS

CHICAGO, July 6.—With nineteen years of baseball service behind him and the end of the long trial in sight, Babe Ruth climbed back to the pitcher's today and led the American All-Stars to a 4-2 victory over the National League team before 40,000 persons who jammed this baseball palace to capacity for the first inter-league game of its kind ever played.

Trotting on past the last milestones in his spectacular career, Ruth became the greatest player of all time again, just for a day. He outplayed, overshadowed and outperformed 25 other players, the pick of 500,000 fans as the best in the two major leagues.

Despite his 39 years, his aching legs, his rolls of fat held firm by a rubber corset, and his other infirmities of age, Ruth supplied the stroke of victory, stole the plaudits of the multitude and put on a one-man show which turned the All-Star game into a personal triumph for the grand old man of the New York Yankees.

Getting down to what Ruth actually did, let's mention this as our standing:

He blasted a home run into the right field bleachers off Bill Hagan, Cardinals star southpaw, with a runner on base in the third inning. This was the punch that actually won the game.

Champ Refuses Bout to Walker

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6—UP—Unless he is given a non-title fight first, Maxie Rosenblum will not jeopardize his light heavyweight title in a bout with Mickey Walker at Madison Square Garden in New York, his manager, Frank Bachman said here today.

Bachman asserted Jimmy Johnston, manager of Madison Square Garden, broke their contract when he refused to match Rosenblum with Al Stillman in a non-title bout as a preliminary to the Carnera-Sharkey championship card.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wood of Bissell avenue and their sons, Marion and Warre, Jr., returned yesterday from a vacation in Los Angeles. Their daughter, Martha, stopped over at Watsonville, where she is visiting Margaret Ataloff of Richmond.

Your Good HEALTH

By CLAUD N. CHRISMAN, M.D.

Letters Often Reveal More Than a Doctor's Diagnosis

NO FORM of literary effort is having a more generous appreciation these days than the collections of old letters, which have been printed in recent months.

There is something about a letter that reveals the general temperature of the writer quite clearly as a physician's diagnosis. Much more than news and general facts go into these communications. Collections of such writings often reveal a general condition of family affairs, of personal welfare, and frequently of world conditions which may not have been suspected. Such human tragedies, such amusing complications and such conspiracies as see the light only when these collections first reach the public eye.

THE medical profession is forbidden by its ethics and even by law to reveal anything confided to the physician in the course of his practice. In the nature of things, this is a wise provision but much of the doctor's joy in living comes from the numerous messages that reach him by mail. The personal letter, in the course of years a considerable practice will be built up, with the change of residence of numerous patients, that must be carried on by correspondence. This is quite outside the exchange of letters incited by a column like this.

BUT what more significant comment upon the times is needed than a query from miles away to know how to mix sulphur and molasses for a spring tonic? It required several days of careful inquiry and the search was conducted after an elderly woman visited the office. From her, I learned that the mixture most approved was no different from nor better than the one Grandmother favored. Many of these letters reveal unfortunate circumstances and desire for secrecy in which the situation itself is at the bottom of the illnesses described.

MANY times there is an appeal for advice from someone who has spent all available funds and must still carry on for the sake of support. Providence sees to it that the doctor gets some genuine fun out of an occasional chance to chuckle. The rest of you may enjoy a jingle that accompanied a recent check that I was able to mark "Paid in full"—Here it is:

Wed to Our Family Doctor
I wonder what I might reply
Upon the statement seen me
Of something wise and brilliant.

Naught else would quite content me. Your "involv" is the orator I fane would enunciate. It speaks in tones demanding like some royal potentate. Its language so convincing showed such commanding will.

It almost had me feeling That I really owed the bill. Mere statements made, not always.

Have the ring of coined gold But your semi-annual lecture.

On finance have got me sold. They say you are a timid man.

That your spouse dominates In strong convincing arguments.

Throughout "United States," And while I have a great respect

For her, "clinging vine."

Treats don't produce the revenue.

Like these few words of thine.

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: What do you think of trick foldings for napkins? Are not in good taste. The correct way to fold a napkin is to square it and lay it in an angle. The folded napkin should be placed at the left of the cover as near to the side as it can be put without touching it. If a service plate is used it may be laid on it.

QUESTION: If one is riding horseback and meets a friend, him? —Leonard G.

ANSWER: Yes, it's the greeting is to be followed by a conversation. Otherwise, he merely salutes or calls out a "hello" and continues on his way.

COUNTRY GIRLS HAVE HEALTHY BEAUTY AIDS

By JACQUELINE HUNT

ROM little farms and lonely little towns I hear the sound of wailing. Women are crying. Teach us to be beautiful. You have everything—colorful, helpful beauty shops; bathrooms that are clean and shining and packed with lovely, convenient things; pretty clothes and inspiring things—the theater, music and lots of people.

"What have we?" Chipped wash basins, hard water that must be pumped or carried from wells, hot sun and dust and wind. We cannot afford to spend much money for cosmetics to keep us good-looking, or even comfortable. When we do have a few cents to spend, we cannot find the things we need most at our small shops. Then there is the monotony and work of the most wearing kind. Yet we want to be beautiful, too, even though we cannot have pretty clothes and amusements. Can't you help us do our best with the little within our reach?"

If you have only known how little you have to buy the city woman for! You have precious God-given things that we cannot have, in spite of our beauty salons and lovely displays of exquisite cosmetics and powders. You have clean, fresh, health-giving air, untainted by smoke and poisonous gases. You have crisp, fresh vegetables and eggs and milk to keep your body healthy and strong and to help you have a clear, lively skin. You have only to learn how to use your assets.

It is true that things are not so convenient for you so your good looks must be gained by constant vigilance and effort. Sometimes it means extra work which you take easily in a drop; it means perseverance and discouragement when your simple home treatments do not seem to be giving you the expected results. But you can be lovely and loveliness is a goal worth working for. Make yourself a schedule and try stick to it.

When you get up in the cool, early morning go out of doors and with your head up, chest high and shoulder back, breathe as deeply as possible. Breathe until you feel the blood circulating down on your diaphragm, expanding your chest and filling the tiny spaces in your upper lungs. Breathe until you feel wide awake and alive. Then take great handfuls of icy water right from the pump, and splash your face, neck and chest. Splash little into your eyes to take away the last bit of sleepiness. Now pat your skin dry and use a hand lotion smoothing the fingers between the palms of your hands and then over your face and neck. Creamy, gentle hand lotions are they found everywhere and they are not very expensive.

Now a tiny bit of rouge and a dusting of powder and you are ready to prepare breakfast and get the day started right. Let the powder and rouge be of the right color so your makeup will not be at all obvious. I have found that many of you are still using pinkish rouge. It looks so artificial—can't you see it yourself? A nice, ready peach rouge, beige or suntan rouge is much nicer for all of you. The skin is naturally full of yellowish tones, and a powder that blends with these tones leaves the skin velvety and naturally looking.

The same applies to rouge. The clear red tones on the slightly orange tones are much more natural in appearance. Get a paste rouge. It is less likely to clog the pores and it is possible to blend it so much more smoothly. Please let me know to use it so you will not look like a rather grim painted doll with a red spot on each cheek. Nature doesn't work that way.

She carries a gay little banner of colors across the cheek and out toward the temple in irregular area. The color is a little deeper, in the center and finally shades away so you cannot see where the color begins or ends. That is what you should do. The only a little rouge, so the effect is lovely and natural.

Names for Cottages

The selection of a name should be governed by location or one's distinctive characteristics.

The Beech Cottage, Valley View Cottage, Friendship Cottage,

Whitewall Point, Pine Tree Lodge, Sycamore Side Up Cottage.

Tasty Dishes for Today

SPECIAL FOODS AT BEER PARTY

By JUDITH WILSON

THE enthusiasm with which the arrival of the new 3.2 is being trumped now that the summer heat brings the thirst-quenching qualities of the new brew into the foreground. The return of beer has meant that manufacturers of certain foods have had a boost toward prosperity, since beer is best when served with the proper accompaniments.

Bever parties are a popular means of entertaining—especially for the men of the household. The dishes served with the frothing glasses of cooling lager vary with the occasion and the time of the day when the meal is served but they must invariably be generous in quantity and they must follow in general the old tradition. Have a generous supply of light and dark brew on hand when the boys come in from a couple of rounds of golf for supper or for the finale to a bridge party and see how your popularity as a hostess grows.

Clams' Comeback

One of the foods that have flashed into the limelight since the beer renaissance is clams. They almost always appear on the menu in one form or another in cocktails, chowders, fritters or steamed or broiled.

Clam cocktail gets the first menu off to a good start. If you have the proper implements, open your clams at home and serve them on the half shell with a small glass of cocktail sauce. If not, have the fish merchant open them for you. In the latter case allow about eight small clams for each serving place them in cocktail glasses and chill thoroughly. Make a cocktail sauce according to these proportions:

One. For each serving allow two tablespoons of tomato catsup, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, a teaspoon of lemon juice, a few drops of tobacco sauce and a small amount of grated horseradish. Pour over the clams and serve at once.

Clam Fritters

Clam fritters are delicious for beer supper. To make them sift one cup of flour with one teaspoon of baking powder. Mix two slightly beaten eggs with one-half cup of milk and stir into the flour making a smooth batter. Chop a dozen clams into small pieces and season generously with salt, pepper and lemon juice and mix with the batter. Drop by tablespoons into deep hot fat and fry until browned on all sides. Sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Cucumbers Add Zest

Cucumbers give a new zest to the potato salad in the first menu. To five diced, boiled po-atoes add one large cucumber, diced, three chopped tomatoes, two teaspoons minced onion and enough salt to season well. Take prepared salad dressing and add an extra teaspoon of prepared mustard to pep it up. Use enough of the dressing to moisten the salad. Garnish with thinly sliced sweet pickles.

After dinner coffee must be served during the first. The following proportions should give the desired strength. Three heaping tablespoons to each cup of water.

Tea should never be boiled. It should be added rather to fresh water which has been brought to a boil and allowed to steep for three or four minutes. Use a full teaspoon for each cup. For tea simply pour freshly made hot tea over cracked ice and serve with a wedge of lemon and powdered sugar on the side.

The muscles of his face are not yet under control.

Sometimes between the third and the fifth month,

he will begin to cry and cry and cry.

Mother may be holding him or playing with him at the time, the no doubt they will be a little startled though pleasantly surprised by this new found power.

Unless tickling provokes a baby to laughter, he is hardly amused. He is dry, well rested, fed and contented that he is being loved. He feels contentment rather and from now on he will express pleasure in this way, too.

Consider His Nerves

The greatest joy of motherhood comes from watching the pink new-born infant develop step by step into an active, thinking child. In their enthusiasm, however, many mothers forget to consider, and therefore fail to understand, what is best for their babies' reactions.

Laughter is a much more natural reaction in infants. Of course, all babies should laugh spontaneously.

It should come from within and be an outer manifestation of well being. It should not be provoked by tickling or by bouncing a baby up and down. This form of parental pleasure is not good for baby. It excites him, makes him over-active and is a frequent cause of nervousness in babies. Tickling makes an adult whose smile is less attractive than a baby's laugh, too. Let him not happy or amused at the moment because he laughs.

Quiet Play

Babies thrive best on quiet.

They take their exercise naaturally. If their clothes are the proper size and comfortable fitting, making freedom of motion possible. No one has to teach him to kick his legs or move his arms. He will take as much exercise as he needs. Roughhouse tires him unnecessarily.

A baby needs to be loved. It gives him confidence. But he is better able to feel at ease when handled gently and spoken to

WILL SIFT VALUATION OF PROPERTY

PITTSBURG, July 6—Investigation into valuation of property in other similarly situated communities was being conducted today by City Manager George T. Oliver following a council session at which the need of a reduction was discussed.

Request for lowering of assessments on business properties was made by City Councilman Max Grabstein and Oliver is scheduled to submit his findings when the council sits as a board of equalization early next month.

While complete data has not been compiled, City Assessor James Fitzgerald indicated that he thought a 10 per cent reduction may be possible. He is conducting a property check preparatory to drawing an assessment roll to be presented to the Board of Equalization.

There will be considerable loss in personal property and the reduced value of real estate must be taken into consideration, Fitzgerald said.

Tending to offset the probable loss will be the appropriation of approximately $7500 which the city will receive for maintenance and improvement of maintenance and improvement of main arterial through the community under the provisions of the Bond secondary highway bill, which provides for allotment of gasoline tax funds for the purpose.

The assessed valuation of the city for the last fiscal year amounted to $6,959,230, and the contemplated reduction would bring the total to about $6,263,807.

Marriage and Divorce Rate Lower in U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 6—For the first time Americans tended to stand put on their domestic relationships.

Most of those who were married stayed married, and most of those who were single stayed single.

The story is told in figures collected by the Census Bureau through 1932.

Only 757 new marital unions were effected in each 1000 population.

It was the first time in 21 years the number of marriages fell below the million mark, there were 981,753.

Similarly, divorces dropped from 12 percent in 1930 to 11 percent in 1932.

"Unless you withdraw the statement I'll sentence you to five hours in jail for contempt," the judge countered.

"I've been put in jail so faster than we are the condemned," Judge Johnson in his best and sternest judicial manner calmly said.

"I hereby demand you to disbar this county to be confined in the county jail for five hours."

Gibson jumped to his feet and after a brief talk with both Pierce and the judge quitted them. Pierce apologized and Johnson withdrew the contempt order.

The opening statement of Pierce ended.

Bartmann choked the woman insensiblly and she died in the Stockton hospital shortly after her trial by the woman's auxiliary of the cult on a charge of adultery.

He also declared that Bartmann obtained pledges of silence from all witnesses to his crime but later accused the women of perjury because he said they could turn him over to the authorities for murder in the result of a row over backgammon rights in the local saloon.

INDUSTRIES TO BE BOOSTED BY HIGHWAY WORK

WASHINGTON, July 6—A dozen industries are expected by the public works administration to benefit from the building of $400,000,000 worth of highways.

In fact, the administration figures that more men will be employed in industries than in actual construction of the roads.

Where these are 1,000,000 hours of work required on the actual laying of one mile of highway, the administration said today, 19,600 such hours are needed to supply materials.

Thus, estimated Donald H. Sawyer, temporary administrator of public works, the outside payroll will be above $200,000,000.

The industries or contractors include steel, cement, explosives, crushed stone, rock, sacks and bags, lime, gypsum, lime stone, sand, power, asphalt, brick and wire.

Around 12,000,000 tons of freight must be transported, he added.
